DAYLIGHT SAVING PLAN IS FAVORED

Considerable Support is Found Here of Movement to Turn Clocks Forward One Hour.

MORE TIME FOR GARDEN WORK

Plan is Already Followed in a Number of Eastern Cities—Another Result of War.

The daylight saving plan finds a large number of supporters here, according to the expressions of men and women who are employed in factories and stores where they are required to go to work at a certain hour and are engaged a specified number of hours each day. The plan is to move the clocks forward one hour which would mean that factory employees and others who go to work at 7 o'clock now would be ready for work at 6 o'clock. This would give them another hour at home before sunset.

In a number of Eastern cities and in some of the middle western cities the movement has been adopted. It has been found to be quite satisfactory although some opposition, of course, has arisen. In quite a few places individual factories have inaugurated the system of their own accord and are at work an hour earlier than the others who follow the regular schedule of working hours.

It is explained that the employees of a number of factories here go to work now at 6:30 o'clock while others report at various times between 6:30 and 7 o'clock. Those who go to work at 6:30 are not especially anxious to move the clock forward another hour but some of the employees say they would not mind reporting at 6 as they would have another half hour at home.

The daylight saving plan originated in the European countries during the present war on account of the desire of the governments to make every minute of time count for the most. It is explained by those who favor the plan here that quite a number of workmen who are employed throughout the day have their own gardens and want to spend as much spare time as possible in cultivating them. On the other hand, many of the factory employees who go to work before 7 o'clock give attention to their garden work for a while each morning before they go to the factories and also have time to garden after they return home at night and before the sun goes down.

The principal objection to the daylight saving plan here is that some of the clocks would be an hour faster than the others and more or less confusion would surely result. The railroads, for instance, would not be able to change their time unless the movement were general over the territory through which their lines extend. There has been some talk of governmental action on the daylight saving movement, but up to this time the suggestions have not resulted in definitely regulations.

JOHN W. DOWNING, FORMER COMMISSIONER, IS DEAD

Well Known Jackson County Resident Passes Away at Home Near Tampico—Funeral Thursday.

John W. Downing, a former resident of this city, and at one time a member of the board of county commissioners, died Tuesday night at his home near Tampico, following an illness of several weeks. He had been in failing health for some time and several days ago suffered a cerebral hemorrhage. After that time his decline was rapid. He had a wide acquaintance throughout the county.

Mr. Downing was a native of Jackson county and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Downing. He was sixty-four years of age. He is survived by his widow and several children. The funeral will be held in this city Thursday by the Rev. J. H. Carnes, pastor of the First M. E. Church. Burial at Riverview.

SHORT SESSION IS HELD BY COUNCIL

Decided That City Will Pay Cost of Building New Sewer for the Rider Packing Company.

EXPENSE ESTIMATED AT $1,500

No Remonstrances Filed to Construction of Sewers on High, Sixth and Bill Streets.

The city council met in an adjourned session last night to complete the business which was left over after the short meeting Thursday night when the council adjourned on account of the patriotic demonstration. The matter of providing sewerage for the Rider Packing Company's plant, North Chestnut street, was presented and the members voted to have the sewer constructed at the city's expense. The street commissioner and his force will do the work under the supervision of the city engineer. It has been estimated that the cost of the sewer will be about $1,500. The new sewer will extend from the company's site along the Southeastern tracks along Ninth street to Central avenue and south on Central avenue to the main sewer on Third street. By laying the sewer along this route it is believed that a large number of property owners will be benefited as it will furnish relief which has been demanded for several years. The Rider Company will extend the sewer from the edge of its property line to the site of the factory.

Last night was the time set for hearing remonstrance to the proposed construction of sewers on High, Sixth and Bill streets which are soon to be permanently improved. No remonstrances were filed and the confirmatory resolutions were adopted without opposition. It was decided several weeks ago to order the sewers built at this time so that the new streets would not have to be torn up for that purpose. The clerk was instructed to advertise for bids so that the contracts can be awarded as soon as possible and all unnecessary delays avoided.

Rockstroh, a member of a special committee appointed by Mayor Ross to inspect the fire fighting equipment in Shelbyville, reported that he and Andrews had visited the city and found that two automobile trucks were in the service and that seven men were regularly employed. The council did not believe that as many men would be needed in this city.

The street commissioner was instructed to put the flusher in use today. This is the first time that the improved streets have been flushed during the spring and it is the intention.

ATTORNEYS FOR LOCAL ROADS APPEAL CASE

Filed Claim With Commissioners for $1,500 for Legal Services—Allowance of $300 Made.

Edward P. Elsner, of this city, D. A. Koehnour and Henry Prince, of Brownstown, attorneys for the petitioners in the matter of the construction of the High street, Second street and Walnut street road improvements have filed an appeal with the circuit clerk in which they demand $1,500, the amount of their claim, for legal services in connection with the court proceedings. The bill was filed with the county commissioners who believed that the claim was excessive inasmuch as the proceedings for the roads were exactly the same. Although an appeal was taken to the supreme court practically one brief and one argument sufficed. In their appeal, the plaintiffs set forth that the commissioners allowed them but $100 on each road, a total of $300, which is in adequate compensation for services rendered.

Joe Steele Improving.

The condition of Joe Steele, who was seriously injured Monday while removing a boiler at the residence of T. S. Blish, was reported much improved. The attending physician said that there was now little danger of concussion of the brain, and that his chances for recovery were good.

WILL GO TO NORTH VERNON

Robert Keach Wins First in Speaking Contest and will Enter District Match.

The preliminary tryout for the district oratory and declamation contest which will be held next Friday evening at the Jennings theater at North Vernon, was given yesterday afternoon before an interested audience of school patrons and high school students. The program opened at 2:30 o'clock in the high school assembly room and continued until 4:30. About twenty-five selections were given, including five orations and twenty readings.

All the selections were presented in a delightful manner, making it difficult for the judges to make a final decision. Each oration included ten-minute talks written by the students on subjects they were especially interested in and had chosen for the occasion. While the readings were not original, they were none the less interesting, being presented in such a manner as to hold the attention of the audience and to receive applause.

The final decision for the oratorical contest will be made by the judges.

BIG FINANCIERS ARE DISTURBED

Wall Street Wants Congress to Show More Consideration in Floating Bond Issue.

FEAR FALLING STOCK MARKET

Believe That the Great Bulk of the Issue Will in Time Fall on Eastern Brokers.

New York, April 18—Wall street is much disturbed over the proposed method of floating the seven billion dollar bond issue.

J. P. Morgan and other financiers are in Washington today attempting to have the present floating plan modified so as to show a little more consideration for Wall street. They fear that appeal for popular subscriptions to buy the bonds will result in many investors in stocks unloading and investing in bonds as they are exempt from taxation and if this is done there will be a falling market and the big financiers will be able to sell the bonds at only 3 1/2 per cent.

They feel that the bulk of the great issue must fall on the New York financiers for purchase. Therefore, they want the issue to carry a higher rate of interest so they can successfully redistribute them. They don't want the bonds exempted from taxation. The administration is deaf to these appeals.

FIRING IS HEARD OFF CHARLESTOWN

First Report Heard at 9:15 by Coast Guard Station Located at Provincetown.

CAUSE IS NOT ASCERTAINED

Two Other Coast Guard Stations Report Continuous Heavy Firing.

Washington, April 18—All doubt that a submarine actually fired at the U. S. destroyer Smith was swept aside today when a report direct from the Smith said the officer on deck actually saw a periscope four hundred yards from the vessel, shortly before he saw the wake of the torpedo.

The reports received from the Charlestown navy yards early this morning that heavy firing was heard off Provincetown, Mass. The navy yards stated the reports came from three separate coast guard stations.

The first report of the firing off Provincetown was heard at 9:15 by the coast guard station located at Provincetown. This station stated that fifteen shots were heard at intervals and after fifteen minutes continuous firing was heard.

The second report arrived fifteen minutes later from the coast guard station at Racepoint and agreed with the report from Provincetown.

The third report was received at 9:35 from the state at Bars Hill which gave the direction as northeast and stated that the firing was heavy and continuous and seemed to be from three guns.

CONSCRIPTION IS GIVEN FIRST BLOW

House Military Committee Votes Twelve to Eight to Give Volunteer System First Trial.

PRESIDENT WANTS DRAFT

Wilson Says General Staff Bill Must Pass for "Welfare of Country."

Washington, April 18—The house military committee today voted twelve to eight in favor of raising a proposed army of 500,000 men by the volunteer system. Determined to rush his selective conscriptive bill through congress, President Wilson went to the capitol to confer with Chairman Chamberlain of the senate military committee and other leaders.

The President told Chamberlain that the bill must go through at once without change from the form drafted by the general staff "for the welfare of the nation."

The President also saw Senator McKellar who favors a trial of the volunteer system to the draft. McKellar maintained his stand for a volunteer system and announced his intention to fight for the last for an amendment for a call for 500,000 volunteers.

An amendment by McKellar to try the volunteer system first was defeated by a vote of ten to seven in the senate committee.

An important amendment providing that no liquor can be sold to soldiers or officers in uniform or taken upon military reservations was appended by the committee.

Around Lens and St. Quentin Field Marshal Haig is increasing the pressure every hour. It was noticeable today that German artillerymen were firing wildly and excitedly at the slightest provocation.

TWO AUSTRIANS RESIGN AS MEMBERS OF CABINET

Possible That German Censorship is Concealing Anti-German Sentiment.

Berlin, April 18 (via London).—Resignation of two Austrian cabinet members was announced in Vienna and received here today.

Great significance may be attached to these resignations since the ministers were members of German parties. It is possible the German and Austrian censorship is concealing considerable anti-German feeling in Austria.

the greatest perhaps in its history. It is strongly urged that Congress and State Legislatures, in passing laws or in making appropriations intended to carry out these or other plans for assuring an adequate food and clothing supply, should, so far as possible, be governed by the principle that when the emergency ceases much permanent reconstruction in agricultural policies and plans may be necessary.

The recommendations in the main call for Federal action, but State Governments can and should cooperate to the fullest degree in considering and executing plans of cooperation and of supplemental legislation and appropriation for the great common purpose herein enunciated.

The Council of National Defense is charged with the duty of mobilizing the resources of the nation, having as one of its members the Secretary of Agriculture. We recommend additional machinery as follows:

A relatively small central agricultural body, whose services and presence might be required in Washington constantly, to be composed of men who have wide knowledge of agricultural matters and executive experience. In selecting these men, attention should be paid to geographical distribution.

A large National advisory body composed of representatives of the leading agricultural agencies and associations concerned not only in production but in distributing and handling commodities.

A small central agricultural body in each state, representing various agricultural interests, including agricultural officials, representatives of agricultural colleges, bankers', business, farmers' and women's organizations, etc., concerned in the production, distribution, and utilization of food supplies and agricultural raw materials. This body should be designated by the Governor, and, if the State has a central council of safety or defense, should be coordinated with it.

25,000,000 APPROPRIATION FOR FOOD CRISIS SITUATION

National and State Organizations Needed—Farmers Called Upon to Help.

To meet the present food crisis an emergency appropriation of $25,000,000 to be made available immediately for the use of the Secretary of Agriculture to meet the extraordinary needs of agriculture; an urgent call to all farmers to increase production and to housewives to avoid all food waste; the mobilization of over 2,000,000 unemployed boys between the ages of fifteen and nineteen years for service on the farms and in the production of food supplies and munitions; the enlistment of men unfitted for military service as an officially-recognized force for the production of necessities; a complete survey of the food supply; national systematic publicity of food prices; effective control of agencies for the manufacture and handling of foods, and price fixing, if necessary—these are among the leading recommendations of sixty-two officials representing State agricultural colleges and commissions of thirty-two States, from New York to the Rocky Mountains, who met at the request of the Secretary of Agriculture to confer with representatives of the U. S. Department of Agriculture in St. Louis, April 10 and 11. The conference, after dealing with the general problems of financing agriculture and organizing the Federal and State agencies for effective cooperation, made a special appeal to the patriotism of farmers and recommended a definite program particularly looking to the increase of cereal and leguminous food and meat and animal products. Home owners and their children were urged to produce as much food as possible in back yards and vacant lots and to can or preserve all supplies.

Upon the farmer rests in large measure the final responsibility of winning the war in which we are now involved. The importance to the nation of an adequate food supply, especially for the present year, can not be over-emphasized. The world's food reserve is very low. Therefore, the man who tills the soil and supports the soldier in the field, and the family at home, is rendering as noble and patriotic a service as is the man who bears the brunt of battle.

Within the next sixty days the final measure of crop acreage and food production for this year will have been established. We urge the importance of the immediate mobilization of all available service in performing the patriotic duty of providing and conserving food.

Because of the world shortage of food, it is scarcely possible that the production of staple crops by the farmer of the United States can be too great this year. There is every reason to believe that a generous price will be paid for the harvest of their fields.

To meet the extraordinary needs of agriculture in this emergency we recommend that an appropriation of $25,000,000, or so much thereof as may be needed, to be available immediately for the use of the Secretary of Agriculture in such manner as he may deem best.

The situation which now confronts our country is a great emergency—

BIG YIELD OF CORN WILL DEPEND ON SEED QUALITY

State Food Director Has Undertaken
Task to Increase Crop 10
Bushels an Acre.

By United Press.

Indianapolis, April 18.—An increase in the yield of corn in Indiana at least ten bushels an acre is one of the biggest tasks which Prof. G. I. Christie, state food director, was today attempting to accomplish as part of Indiana's war work. The average yield an acre of Indiana corn is now thirty-six bushels. The state has an acreage of 5,500,000 bushels. Increase the yield ten bushels an acre and that will mean 50,000,000 additional bushels of corn which the state will produce.

tional bushels of corn which the state will produce.

"The first thing needed to increase the yield of corn, is good seed," said Mr. Christie today. Eliminate the bad seed above all. See that the ground is well fertilized and prepare to cultivate it well. Whenever you are in doubt about any question, ask for advice from farm experts."

In talking on gardening, Mr. Christie advised the use of great care in choosing garden seed suitable to the soil for planting. "Only a small part of the soil is suitable for potatoes," he said. "It must be well-drained, rich, well manured and porous soil for growing potatoes. On the heavy soil beans, tomatoes, corn, beets, carrots and other such foods will grow successfully."

Advertising Not an Expense

By THOMAS MOORE

Associate Director of A. N. P. A. Bureau of Advertising

"Advertising is the simplest thing in the world. You have something to sell. Somebody else wants to buy it. Therefore, you tell them about it. It is the straight line of commerce—the shortest distance between supply and demand. When you advertise you are simply telling them in a way that will create in their minds a desire to buy. It is group salesmanship by the printed word.

"Many make the mistake of considering advertising an expense. It is not. Rent is. So is light and transportation. Advertising is not because it pays its way as it goes along, and is all the time adding to the cumulative value of good will.

"There is expended in this country each year in advertising of all sorts between $650,000,000 and $700,000,000. At least half of the total is expended in newspaper advertising. John Wanamaker recently pointed out that every man who pays one or two cents for a newspaper saves eight or nine cents, because of the fact that that newspaper carries advertising. In other words, if it were not for advertising, it would be impossible to produce the newspaper for less than ten cents a copy. Last year the volume of national advertising in the newspapers increased from $55,000,000 to $75,000,000—something like 30 per cent. It costs one-fifth as much to talk to 1,000 people through the newspapers as it does through general media, and you can pick the 1,000 people you wish to reach. This is economy."

Without question—rates, circulation, service and everything considered,—The Seymour Republican is the best advertising medium in Seymour. The manager of the advertising department is at your service if you will make your pleasure known by either letter or phone.

Here Is Prompt Relief From That Tired, Worn-out Feeling

That afflicts so many people just at this season.

If you are easily fatigued, if you find your appetite failing, and are gradually losing your energy and a feeling of weakness and lassitude is creeping over your entire body, do not disregard nature's warning signal.

These symptoms mean that you are about to succumb to the impurities that have been accumulating in your system all winter, clogging up your blood supply and rendering you totally unfit for the important change in seasons about to take place.

It is highly important that you give your system a general housecleaning, that you purify your blood and cleanse it of all impurities, so as to be prepared to combat the many ailments so common during spring and summer.

A few bottles of S. S. S., the great blood medicine, will purify your blood, thoroughly purge it of all accumulations, renew your appetite and give new strength and vitality to your whole body. The feeling of debility and weakness will immediately disappear, and you will be delighted at the buoyant and vigorous condition that will take its place.

S. S. S. is guaranteed purely vegetable, and thousands take it regularly every spring. You can obtain it at any drug store. Write for interesting literature, which can be had by addressing Swift Specific Co., 8 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.

THE BIG WAR CREDIT.
The first "preparedness measure" enacted by congress since the state of war resolution was passed was the authorization of a seven-billion dollar war credit. Four billion will be used for this country and three billion will be turned over to the entente allies as a loan. Thus at one time congress appropriates more money than was spent during the Civil War. But conditions are different now than they were in 1861. The country has more resources and the wealth of the nation is twenty times greater. If the war should continue many months another appropriation will be necessary. The first credit will soon be used in completing the big war plans which have already been mapped out by the general staff. This country cannot afford to prosecute this war in a half-hearted way. It is now engaged in the world conflict and must do its part for the accomplishment of the aims which have been explained by the President. One of the first things expected of the United States was to provide needed funds for the assistance of its allies. It is also expected to replenish the short food supplies and then, if needed, to send forces to the French trenches. An important conference was held today when the part this country is to take in the war will be decided in detail.

And, just think that the war department is advocating a bill that will provide that all men who were married since April 1 will be subject to military service, unless specially exempted. This ought to relieve the marriage license clerks of their laborious duties.

SELECTION OF DELEGATES TO

Republicans to Enter Into No Agreement with Democrats, on Recommendation of Committee.

Indianapolis, April 18—At a conference of Republican party leaders, held at the Severin Hotel yesterday, made up of members of the Republican state committee, the state executive committee, the state advisory committee, the special campaign committee, Republican state officials, Republican members of the General Assembly, Republican county chairmen and Republican newspaper editors, a decision was reached to turn down the suggestion that was made recently by the Democratic state organization that the two parties join in an effort to nominate fifteen high grade citizens as candidates for delegates-at-large to the coming Constitutional Convention. This conference approved the unanimous report that was made by the special committee that was named some time ago to consider the proposition that was made by the Democratic organization. This special committee held a meeting during the morning and arrived at its conclusion after the matter had been discussed from all angles.

This special committee was made up of members of the Republican state committee and one additional representative from each Congressional District.

The committee report that fixed the party's policy after it had been approved by the larger party conference, was as follows:

"The undersigned committee, consisting of the Thirteen District Chairmen and one additional member from each Congressional District, appointed for the purpose of studying the advisability and practicability of the suggestion for an effort toward a non-partisan designation of fifteen candidates for delegates-at-large to the coming Constitutional Convention, and to ascertain the opinions and wishes of Republicans generally in connection therewith, begs leave to submit the following report:

"We find the sentiment among Republicans very much in favor of endeavoring to induce the very strongest men in the state to become candidates for delegates.

"We find the sentiment very much divided as to the means of accomplishing this end. It is our opinion that the method suggested will not prove a practical plan for bringing about the result desired. Further, it is our opinion that no practical method can be devised to bring about the desired result and, therefore, that the Republican party should not, as such, participate in such arrangement.

"We are very strongly convinced, however, that the duty of our citizenship is very clear to give much attention at once towards securing the services in the Convention of delegates with no ulterior purposes, furthered by no special interest, advancing no special propaganda and moved by no force whatever, except to accomplish the greatest possible good for the State.

"We recognize the fact, as suggested, that there are active forces of various kinds moving in the state to control, directly or indirectly, the deliberations of the Convention, and we commend to the people the closest scrutiny of all such procedure to the end that nothing be allowed to be done, and that no default be permitted which will result in the successful consummation of such ends.

"We recognize, also, the good faith of the suggestion for joint action of the two political parties; and we urge that all citizens, not as partisans but as patriots, go out at once and use every influence which they can command to induce the candidacy of the very best possible men, regardless of their political affiliations, and that such a number of such men be induced to become candidates that there can be no doubt of the final selection of men who are fit and qualified."

tion of the council that it shall be used regularly from this time.

It was stated that the representatives of the government had filed notice that about one foot of the brick alley south of the new postoffice building was included in the deed for the lot and that the city must remove the brick and vacate that portion of the alley. The street commissioner was instructed to see that the order was complied with. The council has known that this part of the alley was included in the site purchased by the government.

Rockstroh and Steinwedel were appointed members of a committee to arrange for fire protection for the new Rider plant. It may be necessary to install an additional fire hydrant.

THE COUNTRY STORE

Has experienced the largest business the past week in the history of our store. Saturday sales exceeded any one day's sales since we opened our store here—in fact we could not find time to change our advertisement last week and we are not saying this to boast, but we feel that it is our duty to tell the people just what we are doing and if necessary we will show our books to prove the statement. This is only brought about by people having confidence in the store and our prices being right at all times,—give us your next order and rest assured you can do better, for I am constantly scouring the different City markets for real bargains for my customers. Most all prices are firm and higher, we look for still higher prices before the week is over and these prices are subject to change any day this week, so we advise BUYING AT ONCE.

THIS MOTHER GAVE HER ALL

Touching Incident of Sacrifice on the Altar of Her Country's Need.

One of the touching incidents of General Lyons' march to Wilson creek was that of a Tennessee mother bringing her little boy to the captain's tent and offering him for the service of his country. The boy's father had been killed in battle and the mother and boy were alone in the world. The bright eyes and alert bearing of the little chap, for he was scarcely thirteen years of age, caught the eye of the captain and he asked what the boy could do. "I can drum," he said proudly stretching himself to his full height. And he could as the fife soon found out as he played "The Flowers of Edinborough," a most difficult piece to follow with the drum. "Madam, I'll take the boy," said the captain. The mother kissed her boy and turning to the captain said: "Bring him back, captain," and to the boy she said as she placed her hand on his eager little head, "God bless you, my boy. You're all I have left, but I give you to my country, and drum right bravely for the boys in blue." During the heavy fatiguing marches from Rolla to Springfield it was amusing to see the long-legged fifer wading through the mud with our little drummer hero mounted on his back. During the fight at Wilson creek the cheery fife and brave drum beat time for the soldier boys in battle. The fight led down into a deep ravine and it was not long before our drummer boy was in the midst of the fray. That night the detail on guard duty near the ravine thought he heard faintly the sound of a drum. He listened in the moonlight and when the relief came he asked permission to go in search of the little drummer lad. He followed the sound of the drum and soon found our hero seated on the ground with his back against a tree and his faithful drum hanging on a bush. He dropped his drum sticks as the guard came up and exclaimed: "Oh, corporal, I am so glad to see you. Give me a drink," and as he turned to go to get him water, he pleaded: "Oh, don't go and leave me. I can't walk." His little legs had been shot off at the knees. Looking closer he discovered a dead soldier lying in the grass, but evidently before he died he had put a tourniquet about the stumps of the little legs. The brave lad was carried into camp and given surgical attention, but the brave little spirit went out into the brightness and glory of a duty well done and a country served even unto death.

CHAPTER XIII.

Always Two by Two.

It was January when a guide from the post brought Paul Weyman to Henri Lot's cabin on the Waterfound. "It is d— strange," said Henri. "I have lost seven lynx in the traps, torn to pieces like they were no more than rabbits that the foxes had killed. No thing—not even bear—have ever tackled lynx in a trap before. It is the first time I ever see it."

This aroused Weyman. He was one of that growing number of thoughtful men who believed that man's egoism, as a race, blinds him to many of the more wonderful facts of creation.

"There is one big wolf an' one smaller," said Henri. "An' it is always the big wolf who goes in an' fights the lynx. I see that by the snow. While he's fighting, the smaller wolf makes many tracks in the snow just out of reach, an' then when the lynx is down, or dead, it jumps in an' helps tear it into pieces. All that I know by the snow."

During the two weeks that followed, Weyman found much to add to the material of his book. Not a day passed that somewhere along Henri's trap-line they did not see the trails of the two wolves, and Weyman observed that—as Henri had told him—the footprints were always two by two, and never one by one. On the third day they came to a trap that had held a lynx, and at sight of what remained Henri cursed in both French and English until he was purple in the face. The lynx had been torn until its pelt was practically worthless.

Weyman saw where the smaller wolf had waited on its haunches, while its companion had killed the lynx. He did not tell Henri all he thought. But the days that followed convinced him more and more that he had found the most dramatic exemplification of his theory. Back of this mysterious tragedy of the trap-line there was a reason.

Why did the two wolves not destroy the fisher-cat, the ermine and the marten? Why was their feud with the lynx alone?

Weyman was strangely thrilled. He was a lover of wild things, and for that reason he never carried a gun. And when he saw Henri placing poison baits for the two marauders, he shuddered, and when, day after day, he saw that these poison baits were untouched, he rejoiced. Something in his own nature went out in sympathy to the heroic outlaw of the trap-line who never failed to give battle to the lynx. Nights in the cabin he wrote down his thoughts and discoveries of the day.

One day the big idea came to Henri. Weyman was with him when they struck fresh signs of lynx. There was a great windfall ten or fifteen feet high, and in one place the logs had formed a sort of cavern, with almost solid walls on three sides. The snow was beaten down by tracks, and the fur of rabbit was scattered about. Henri was jubilant.

"We got hem—sure!" he said.

He built the bait-house, set a trap and looked about him shrewdly. Then he explained his scheme to Weyman. If the lynx was caught, and the two wolves came to destroy it, the fight would take place in that shelter under the windfall, and the marauders would have to pass through the opening. So Henri set five smaller traps, concealing them skillfully under leaves and moss and snow, and all were far enough away from the bait-house so that the trapped lynx could not spring them in his struggles.

"When they fight, wolf jump this way an' that—an' sure get in," said Henri. "He miss one, two, three—but he sure get in trap somewhere."

That same morning a light snow fell, making the work more complete, for it covered up all footprints and buried the telltale scent of man. That night Kazan and Gray Wolf passed within a hundred feet of the windfall, and Gray Wolf's keen scent detected something strange and disquieting in the air. She informed Kazan by pressing her shoulder against his, and they swung off at right angles, keeping to windward of the trap-line.

For two days and three cold starlit nights nothing happened at the windfall. Henri understood, and explained to Weyman. The lynx was a hunter, like himself, and also had its hunt-line, which it covered about once a week. On the fifth night the lynx returned, went to the windfall, was lured straight to the bait, and the sharp-toothed steel trap closed relentlessly over its right hindfoot. Kazan and Gray Wolf were traveling a quarter of a mile deeper in the forest when they heard the clanking of the steel chain as the lynx fought to free itself. Ten minutes later they stood in the door of the windfall cavern.

It was a white clear night, so filled with brilliant stars that Henri himself could have hunted by the light of them. The lynx had exhausted itself, and lay crouched on its belly as Kazan and Gray Wolf appeared. As usual, Gray Wolf held back while Kazan began the battle. In the first or second of these fights on the trap-line, Kazan would probably have been disemboweled or had his jugular vein cut open, had the fierce cats been free. They were more than his match in open fight, though the biggest of them fell ten pounds under his weight. Chance had saved him on the Sun Rock. Gray Wolf and the porcupine had both added to the defeat of the lynx on the sand-bar. And along Henri's hunting line it was the trap that was his ally. Even with his enemy thus shackled he took bigger chances than ever with the lynx under the windfall.

The cat was an old warrior, six or seven years old. His claws were an inch and a quarter long, and curved like scimitars. His forefeet and his left hindfoot were free, and as Kazan advanced, he drew back, so that the trap-chain was slack under his body. Here Kazan could not follow his old tactics of circling about his trapped foe, until it had become tangled in the chain, or had so shortened and twisted it that there was no chance for a leap. He had to attack face to face, and suddenly he lunged in. They met shoulder to shoulder. Kazan's fangs snapped at the other's throat, and missed. Before he could strike again, the lynx flung out its free hindfoot, and even Gray Wolf heard the ripping sound that it made. With a snarl Kazan was flung back, his shoulder torn to the bone.

Then it was that one of Henri's hidden traps saved him from a second attack—and death. Steel jaws snapped over one of his forefeet, and when he leaped, the chain stopped him. Once or twice before, blind Gray Wolf had leaped in, when she knew that Kazan was in great danger. For an instant she forgot her caution now, and as she heard Kazan's snarl of pain, she sprang in under the windfall. Five traps Henri had hidden in the space in front of the bait-house, and Gray Wolf's feet found two of these. She fell on her side, snapping and snarling. In his struggles Kazan sprang the remaining two traps. One of them missed. The fifth, and last, caught him by a hindfoot.

Henri and Weyman were out early. When they struck off the main line toward the windfall, Henri pointed to the tracks of Kazan and Gray Wolf, and his dark face lighted up with pleasure and excitement. When they reached the shelter under the mass of fallen timber, both stood speechless for a moment, astounded by what they saw. Even Henri had seen nothing like this before—two wolves and a lynx, all in traps, and almost within reach of one another's fangs. But surprise could not long delay the business of Henri's hunter's instinct. The wolves lay first in his path, and he was raising his rifle to put a steel-capped bullet through the base of Kazan's brain, when Weyman caught him eagerly by the arm.

Chablis is one of the most typically French towns in all France. It lies in the heart of a region of famous vineyards, it has given its name to a famous wine; all the land and the air and the sky seem especially designed by providence to afford a proper luscious ripening to the big grapes that hang in great clusters from the gnarled black vine stumps. Chablis expresses itself in its wine. All the smooth lazy days, the long warm afternoons, the cool music of the little river and the hot blue of the sky seem to find their way into the casks, and the glasses that the people of Chablis sip leisurely in the inn of an evening.

All about Chablis lie the gentle rounded slopes of the vineyards, fragrant six months in the year with the various stages of the ripening grapes. The river winds its lazy way along the shallow valley, bordered by the inevitable French poplars, that stand stiff and straight in the clear sunlight. Long white roads—the endless straight white roads of France—stretch to the horizon on either hand. Chablis is like a lonely bead on a long white cord in its relation to these dusty roads.

Why He Isn't Proud.

BOOP—That boy of yours is a fine tall lad, Jack; you should be proud of him.

Jack—I ain't though.
Bob—No! Ho's that?
Jack—Why, he's eighteen inches taller than I am and his mother insists on cutting down his trousers to fit me!

Miss De Style—Does she think very much of that aviator?
Miss Gumbusta—Oh, yes. She worships the very ground he flies over.—Life.

Turkestan Is Inferior.

INVESTMENTS for FARMERS

"The investments of the farmer which pay the largest interest are the investments in fertilizers in good live stock, in good machinery and other forms of equipment."

Dean F.B. Mumford, University of Missouri in The Banker-Farmer.

Hints For the Home Garden.

WHAT TO DO IN APRIL

The Republican presents to its readers hints for the gardener for April that have been prepared by the experts of the National Emergency Food Garden Commission, of Washington, D. C. This organization, which is affiliated with the Conservation Department of the American Forestry Association, will give the readers of The Republican expert advice on garden work.

Transplant late in April tomato, pepper and eggplant from plant frame or cold frame to garden.

Bed sweet potato in plant frame.

Sow celery seeds in plant frame.

Transplant annual flower plants into flower borders.

Transplant dahlia and snap-dragon plants into flower borders.

Plant summer flowering bulbs.

Plant beans, Swiss chard, kohlrabi, carrots, parsnips, salsify, corn, cucumbers, melons, squash, and okra.

Sow seeds of alyssum, cosmos, mignonette, and nasturtium in flower borders.

Keep soil between rows mellow.

Spray for insect enemies.

Plan for disposing of various crops.

Planting Onions.

Onions, both of the green, spring variety and of the dry sort used for stewing and flavoring, because of their immense yield, should be in every small garden, says today's bulletin of the National Emergency Food Garden Commission, cooperating with this newspaper to increase the food supply by planting home gardens as a war measure.

Onions grown commercially sometimes yield as much as 800 bushels to the acre. Therefore even a small bed in a garden will produce a large supply.

The careful gardener may disregard directions and plant onions even closer than the rules advise. The two requisites in every close planting are rich soil and thorough cultivation. Weeds are fatal to heavy yields of onions. Frequent, shallow hoeing—or if the rows are too close together for the hoe, stirring the soil with a hand weeding fork—and plenty of water are essential in good onion cultivation.

Green onions are grown from the small bulbs, called sets. Onions planted in this way will come into bearing rapidly. The usual method of planting sets is to make a hole in the soil with the finger or a small stick 1 inch deep and cover up the bulb without pressing the soil on top. For intensive growing plant the sets an inch and a half apart in the rows. If the rows are to be hoed they should be at least a foot apart, but they can be closer together if the cultivation is to be done with a hand weeder. A quart and a half of sets will plant 100 feet of rows sown thus thickly.

Late onions are usually grown from seed sown thickly in drills 12 to 14 inches apart. Do not be alarmed when you read on seed packages they they must be sown in drills, for in such cases the drill meant is not a tool but a shallow trench. For onion seed the drill should be a little less than an inch deep. When the plants come up thin them out to 3 inches apart.

TOP DRESSING It is possible, by POSSIBILITIES, top dressing to bring back every run-down meadow and rough hillside in the country, and this without one dollar labor expense except that of spreading the fertilizer. Results obtained at the Rothamsted station can be duplicated in this country and are being duplicated in increasing measure.

BUT THIS IS HOW HE DID IT

H 243

How to Combat Insect Enemies.
Prepared by the U. S. department of agriculture.

IN the path to easy success with roses lie numerous insect pests which, unless prevented, will devour leaves or suck juices, thus seriously impairing the vitality of the plants. The only way in which the rose gardener may prevent these attacks is by careful and insistent spraying with insecticides.

These insect pests are of two general types—those which eat the foliage, as rose slugs and the rose chafer, and those which suck the sap, as aphides, scale insects and thrips. The presence of leaf eating insects is usually first detected through the discovery of partially eaten leaves or of skeletonized leaves—that is, leaves from which a portion of the lower or upper surface has been eaten, leaving merely the midrib and veins. The discovery of the enemy frequently follows. Protection from this sort of attack is afforded by hand picking or by covering both surfaces of the foliage thoroughly with some poisonous substance, as arsenate of lead. Wherever a garden hose is available a strong stream of water directed against rose slugs on the foliage will knock them off and in many cases save the bush from further injury by them. The rose chafer is a rather difficult insect to control, and arsenical poisons applied at double the usual strength often fail to kill them before the damage is done. Frequent hand picking of the beetles and dropping them into a vessel containing water covered with a film of kerosene or screening the plants with mosquito netting, especially the latter, often affords the only means of preventing their destructive work.

He who loathes war, and will do everything in his power to avert it, but who, in the last extremity, encounter its perils, from love of country and of home—who is willing to sacrifice himself, and all that is dear to him in life, to promote the well-being of his fellowman, will ever receive a worthy homage.—Abbott.

A WORTHY CITIZENSHIP

It is the Hope of the Nation—Her Welfare is Our First Concern.

A great nation is made only by worthy citizens.—C. D. Warner.

National enthusiasm is the great nursery of genius.—Tuckerman.

Our country's welfare is our first concern, and who promotes that best, best proves his duty.—Harvard.

When'er our country calls, friends, sons and sires should yield their treasures up, nor own a sense beyond the public safety.—Brooks.

GROWING NAVY BEANS.

"A firm seed bed, seed free of disease planted in a soil well supplied with humus and plantfood, shallow cultivation and careful harvesting are essential factors in successful bean growing," says a well-known bean authority. In this section the beans should be planted by May 20.

250 YEARS OF PROFITABLE GRASS.

In England there is a park at the famous Rothamsted experiment station, which has been used as a meadow for more than two and one-half centuries, which was used as a hayfield at the time of the Revolution, and which was in sod when America was being colonized. This park has been top dressed annually for the last sixty years. At the beginning of this period it was producing about 1 1/4 tons of hay per acre. Where fertilizers have been used, the average acre yield for 50 years has been in one case 2.7 tons, in another 3.3 tons, and in a third case 4.1 tons, depending upon the amount of top dressing applied. This is really a wonderful accomplishment, and should make those farmers who are content with "mining" instead of farming, with robbing the soil and year after year getting smaller and smaller crops, feel that possibly they are not using to the fullest, the opportunities given them.

The National Guard

By Kenneth MacDougall

Pushers of pens and pencils,
Workers of wood and steel,
Doctors, lawyers and business men,
Answer the bugle's peal.

Hurrying throngs of khaki,
Rumble of wagon train,
Clatter of cavalry horses,
The Guard is called out again.

Back from the sun-baked desert,
Stalwart, alert and hard,
Protecting the nation's vitals,
Is the much-knocked National Guard.

Give them the praise that's due them,
For the regular calls "em 'pard."
Watch out for the wives and families
Of the men of the National Guard.

CHAFF INSTEAD OF OATS

Profits from raising oats come through growing more bushels per acre at the lowest cost per bushel. However, the yield is not the whole story, as we want quality along with yield. The beauty of big yields is that better quality goes along with big yields, due to the fact that the same plantfood, viz.: phosphoric acid produces both big yields and high quality. Quality depends on weight of kernels and not on weight of hulls. Hulls are light in weight and contain little feeding value. One hundred pounds of quality oats give as high as 78 pounds of oat meat, while 100 pounds poor quality oats give as low as 50 pounds of oat meat. This is not all, for you pay the thrasher by bushel measure but your grain dealer buys by weight. One hundred pounds of good oats represents about three bushels by measure, 100 pounds of poor oats, often as high as five bushels. Quality oats sell for several cents per bushel more on the market than poor inferior chaffy oats. On a 1,000-bushel crop, this item often makes a difference of $40 to $90.

In order to grow a large yield of high-quality oats, you must first select the best suited oat for your season and farm. Since oats like and fill best during cool weather, under average conditions the earlier the oat, the better. Early maturity avoids rust and enables the plants to ripen before the hot, dry weather does its injurious work. Early oats will ripen and escape disease and unfavorable climatic conditions better than the late variety, yet the latter are usually the heaviest yielders. It is easily possible to grow the late or longer growing varieties over wider territory than at present by hastening their maturity through the use of fertilizers high in phosphoric acid.—J. W. Henebreth.

Remy in the Garden.

Upon the suggestion of a news item that a vegetable garden would be planted in the yard of the state capitol and a newspaper comment that it might be tended by the employees of the state house, R. A. Cox has sent E. A. Remy, assistant deputy secretary of state, a clever cartoon which was drawn by Earl M. Cox. The cartoon shows several employees at work in the garden with a large picture of Mr. Remy putting out tomato plants. Just back of him a friend is calling out "Hey Remy, you're setting those tomatoes out upside down." The cartoon will be much enjoyed by Mr. Remy's friends at the state capitol.
